In the recent years, spam has grown enormously and accounts for roughly 96% of the world's total email traffic. It is therefore important to stop the influx of spam, not only to increase margins on your hosting offerings, but also to reduce operating costs and to raise customer's satisfaction!

Quick Read

Jemasoft, based in Belgium, is devoted to quality, partnerships and decency concerning their products and prices. Jemasoft has acknowledged the fact that every case needs a customized solution as not every case is the same.

Furthermore, Jemasoft is specialized in tailor-made ERP-applications, and links them to several types of websites, such as web shops and online catalogs. In addition, Jemasoft provides CMS tools, used for updating websites and email campaigns. Moreover, Jemasoft has diverted into consultancy, web design, search engine optimization and outsourcing as well. Moreover, a second department was created, in order to take responsibility for hardware appliances, such as servers, desktops, laptops, printers and networks.

Challenges

Jemasoft's way of dealing with spam prior using SpamExperts was not sufficient enough to stop the large amount of spam messages. Checking whether or not an email was legitimate demanded lots of resources on a daily basis, especially accumulated over the year. What's more, their previous anti-spam solutions occasionally held genuine email in quarantine, which led to a loss of business, as these email did not received a reply.
